FUNERAL HELD FOR DAUGHTER REV. BRADSHAW

Largely-attended funeral services for Linda Ruth Bradshaw, 3-year-old daughter of Rev. and Mrs. G. B. Bradshaw, were held at the North Baptist church Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, conducted by Rev. G. O. Key, Rev. D. A. Grigg, both of this city, assisted by Rev. E. M. Paulk of Royse City.

Besides special music by the church choir, a quartet composed of E. L. Kissinger, Elmer and Bob Parris and Grady Cooper, gave a number. Mrs. Stinebaugh of Nevada also sang a solo at the impressive service.

The remains of the sweet little girl were laid to rest in the Greenville cemetery, where the mound was covered with a profusion of flowers. The Harris Funeral home of this city had charge of funeral arrangements.

Linda Ruth passed away at the home of her parents in this city early Monday morning at 3:40 o'clock after a little more than a week's illness of diphtheria. Besides her heart-broken parents, two brothers, Buren and Charles William, survive hre passing. A little sister, Miriam Jewell, preceded her in death.

JAYCEES WILL OBSERVE FIRST ANNIVERSARY

The McKinney Junior Chamber of Commerce met in regular weekly session at the Chamber of Commerce rooms Tuesday night with President W. P. Abernathy in the chair.

The Jaycees discussed their anniversary celebration to be held next Tuesday night, May 23, at Eros Brown's farm, near Allen, which will be in the form of an old-fashioned barbecue. The wives and sweethearts of the Jaycees have been invited as special guests. This meeting will mark the closing of the first year of activities for the Jaycees in which they have been busy and which has made them an important part in the civic life of McKinney.

The golf tournament, finals of which are being played today, also came in for considerable discussion. Earl Walker, chairman of the tournament committee, reported, after which President Abernathy praised Chairman Walker and Dr. Lloyd Thomas for their commendable work in making the tournament a success.

Rev. Thomas, Methodist minister of the Mantua community, was here Tuesday.

County Superintendent L. Dow Hendricks and his assistant Malcolm Walters, announced Wednesday that they have received another $1.00 per capita on the Collin county apportionment of the 1932-33 school year. The amount received totaled $18,044 there being that many students in Collin county, on which the apportionment can be claimed. This makes $8 per capita of the $16.00 fund received so far.

SMOKEHOUSE AND CONTENTS BLOWN AWAY

Bryan Lewis, of Blue Ridge, was in McKinney Tuesday on business. He reported a very severe wind and hailstorm at his home, a couple of miles southwest of Pike. His smokehouse was literally torn to pieces and blown away. His meat supply and other things stored in the building were widely scattered about over the surrounding fields and more or less damaged.

His barn was unroofed and lots of shingles were torn from the room of his home. Mr. Lewis is a tenant on one of the farms of A. D. Hope, the McKinney hardware and furniture merchant.

Mr. Lewis reported that more or less damage of a minor nature was also caused by the storm on surrounding farms. One of the farmers to suffer considerable damage to his buildings and outhouses was John Parker, a widely-known farmer and stockman of Northeast Collin.

Miss Nellie Roberson, teacher in the Franklin school, was in McKinney on business Tuesday.

Gene Lindsey of the Mantua community was a McKinney visitor Tuesday.

VICTIM OF HEART ATTACK BURIAL TUESDAY

Impressive funeral services for Gordon Renfro were held at Wilson Chapel, southeast of McKinney, Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock, conducted by Rev. J. Ben Snider, McKinney Baptist minister. Interment followed in the Wilson Chapel cemetery with the Odd Fellows assisting in the service. The bier was covered with pretty flowers, sent by friends and relatives, attesting to the esteem in which the deceased was held.

The deceased, who was 60 years of age, was a substantial farmer and respected resident of the Higgins community. It will be remembered by our readers that he died suddenly from a heart attack Sunday evening about 9 o'clock, when he was assisting his aged father, F. M. Renfro, preparing to go to the storm house. It is believed that excitement caused his sudden demise.

Besides his wife and aged father, five sons and two daughters survive his passing. They are Raymond and Norman Renfro, grocery merchants of Littlefield, Texas; Jess, Ross and Alton Renfro, Mrs. Brantley Wilburn, all of Littlefield, and Mrs. Jewel Reeder, who resides with her parents on Route 6, McKinney. One brother, Charlie Renfro, and sister, Mrs. Ras Stewart, both residing on Route 5, McKinney, also survive.

The deceased was a native of Tennessee, but had resided in the Higgins community in this county since his youth. He was a member of the Baptist church, Woodmen and I. O. O. F. fraternal orders.

GUY M'NAMARA IS TO BE MARSHAL FOR WEST TEXAS

The Texas senators announced Tuesday in Washington an agreement as to two more Texas appointments, recommending Guy McNamara of Waco for United States marshal for the western district and W. H. Gilliland of Port Arthur for collector of customs for that district.

McNamara is a farmer residing at Hallsburg, near Waco, to which place he retired after serving fourteen years as Waco's chief of police. He will succeed Scott C. White of El Paso, whose term expires June 15. Gilliland is a business man and Jefferson county Democratic chairman. He will succeed Kyle Elam, Republican, whose term expired Jan. 23. The western marshal's job pays $6,500 a year, and the Porth Arthur collectorship $3,700.

No Agreement on Attorney.

As indicated Monday, no agreement was reached as to the office of United States attorney for the northern district of Texas, and each of the senators will recommend his candidate and let the attorney general make the decision. Senator Sheppard is supporting Clyde Eastus of Fort Worth and Senator Connally favors William B. Harrell of Dallas.

BILL STRICKLAND MARKETS SOME CHOICE LAMBS

Bill Strickland, who lives out on Allen, Route 1, has just recently sent a truckload of registered Hampshire lambs to the market in Forth Worth, which he sold for $5.25 per hundredweight. This was 25 cents more per hundredweight than the prevailing price at Fort Worth at the time —a real compliment not only to Mr. Strickland's lambs but also to the sheep-raising industry of this county. The lambs were in good condition and well fed. They averaged about 75 pounds each. There were twenty in the load. Mr. Strickland has been raising sheep for many years and is one of the best-known sheep raisers in North Texas.

Sheep are doing their part along with other live stock, in helping our farmers tide over the depression, supplying their pockets at nearly all seasons of the year with some ready money. Live stock raising has meant much to Collin county in the past and should continue to do so in the future.

Jack Beard of Houston is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Beard, in this city.

A vocal music school opened Monday night at 8 o'clock at the First Baptist church, conducted by Otis Deaton of Dallas. This school will continue for twenty nights, offering a course in note reading, choral singing, sight reading and song practice. The

PRINCETON GOT TIMELY RAIN FOR ALL CROPS

Robert R. Parker of Princeton was in McKinney Tuesday, shaking hands with friends. He reported a most welcome rain of perhaps an inch or more Sunday night in his section of the county, where onions are grown in considerable quantities.

Growers welcomed the rain which will help the crop mature into a better quality of onions and also increase the yield. Farmers expect to begin pulling their crop in that section from the first to the fifteenth of next month.

The present outlook is favorable for a fairly good price to the producer this year on account of the drouthy condition prevailing in the onion growing areas over the United States coming in ahead of the onion season up here in North Texas.

Mr. Parker said the Princeton section was fortunate in escaping the hail bombardment that some other parts of the county suffered and also they escaped from heavy damaging winds. Princeton section is blessed with good stands of both cotton and corn. Some cotton has been plowed and farmers are beginning to chop it. Corn is about knee high and growing nicely.

MOTHER'S DAY HAPPY ONE FOR MRS. J. P. COFFEY

The home of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Johnsey, 210 East Woodin street, Dallas, was the scene of a happy, joyous occasion Sunday, May 14. A dinner was given by them, honoring their mother, Mrs. J. P. Coffey, who now makes her home with them.

A delicious dinner attractively arranged was served to the twenty persons present.

It has long been the custom of the children of this old pioneer Collin county family to celebrate birthday anniversaries and other festive days of the year by all meeting together in the old home of their parents at McKinney, and now since the old home has been broken up they are carrying on the family tradition by meeting together occasionally in the different homes of the children.

Mrs. Coffey was the recipient of many nice presents and remembrances from children, grandchildren and friends.

She enjoyed every minute of the day. Someone jokingly said: "Let's have a talk from 'Mammy,' and she said, "Perhaps by the time I get through telling all of you how I want you to live for the Lord and to work for his kingdom, you will wish you had not called on me." That sounds like "Aunt Sallie" all right.

Those present included the honorees, Mrs. J. P. Coffey and Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Williams; grandson, Jimmie D. Brady; Mr. and Mrs. Foster Hunt and children, Sammie and Margaret Ann, of Ardmore, Okla.; James Jernigan, student in North Texas State Teachers college, Denton; Miss Ruby Johnsey, Trenton; Mrs. A. W. Jernigan, Sedalia; Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Coffey and daughter, Miss Evelyn Mae; Mrs. Alice Matthews Harris, Loyce Winford, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Johnsey, daughter, Miss Rena, and son, Robert, all of Dallas.

Mrs. Coffey is the widow of the late J. Perry Coffey, county commissioner for two terms and one of the county's most revered pioneer settlers of the Westminster section of the county, who later moved to McKinney here where he passed away a few years ago.

The attendance at the commencement Tuesday night was unusually large.

B. Spurgin pitched and batted the Milligan baseball team to an 8-0 victory over the Viney Grove team at Viney Grove Saturday. Only twenty-eight Viney Grove men faced him, while he allowed one hit, one walk and struck out seventeen. At bat he clouted a homer, two doubles and a single. Milligan garnered nine hits and one walk. Wallace pitched good ball for Viney Grove, whiffing seven.

McBee, wire chief of the Southwestern Bell Telephone company, and son, Tom, 1932 McKinney High letter man ,and Fred Dickinson, of these papers, attended the game between the 1932 and 1933 Sherman High Bearcat squads at Sherman Tuesday night. President Roosevelt Sends Peace Note To 54 Rulers

Sen. Borah Sees Recognition For Soviet Russia.

He Favors Policy

Lacking Official Authority, Moscow Is Hopeful of Better Relations

Washington, May 17.—A ready disposition to forsee early recognition of Soviet Russia in the fact that President Roosevelt's peace appeal was sent direct to the Moscow government was evinced Tuesday by many officials here, despite a quick disclaimer from sources close to the administration.

Some high officials insisted that the move was not to be interpreted in any way, but, nevertheless, there were many who clung to the opinion that if Russia replies directly, de facto recognition will, in effect, be complete.

President Roosevelt's party leader in the senate, Robinson of Arkansas, said that "sending the communication direct to President Kalinin, particularly in view of implied acknowledgement of conversational relations" appeared to him to have the effect of an intent to recognize.

Senator Borah (Rep.), Idaho, former chairman of the foreign relations committee and long an advocate of recognition, was outspoken in his interpretation of the day's events.

◆ ◆ ◆

Now Dealing With Facts.

"I am not concerned as to whether the president intended this as recognition," he said. "I am only concerned with the proposition that its effect is the same as technical recognition.

"I do not know what the president had in mind as to recognition, but we are now dealing direct with Russia and that is the important fact."

FORMER COUNTY OFFICIAL VISITED M'KINNEY MONDAY

Former County Commissioner C. L. Nichols of District No. 3, this county, was in town Monday, accompanied by his son, Prof. Elbert R. Nichols, principal for the past four years of the Jourdanton High school, about thirty miles south of San Antonio.

C. L. Nichols was born and reared about three miles east of Melissa. His parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Nichols, were a highly esteemed couple of early settlers. C. L. lived many years at Blue Ridge and was elected county commissioner and served through two terms from 1908-1912 inclusive. He served under parts of the administrations of both Judge John Church and Judge H. L. Davis. He made a fine commissioner. A man of his splendid raising, high integrity of character and sense of honor always makes a worthy public servant when he is called by his fellow citizens to discharge a public trust.

While here, he visited his niece, Mrs. Reuben Penney, and family, and also his sister-in-law, Miss Lucy Smith, an excellent teacher in one of our grammar schools.

This editor was very glad to renew acquaintances with him. Mr. Nichols bought a place in Grayson county, just north of Tom Bean, and moved up there thirteen years ago. However, he still entertains the highest regard for his old Collin county friends and former constitutents and reads his old home county news every week through the columns of our paper, the Weekly Democrat-Gazette, which goes to his address on Route 2, Whitewright.

W. A. MASSIE HAS AN OUTSTANDING JERSEY HERD

W. A. Massie of this city has an outstanding herd of registered Jersey cattle, numbering about thirty head, including calves. He has had a nice increase of choicely bred young calves this spring, both male and female.

Mr. Massie has had twenty years' experience in the business which he has studied diligently along blood lines for both production and show purposes. Probably no man in this section of the state is more thoroughly conversant with registered Jersey cattle pedigrees than is Arthur Massie.

Mr. Massie's herd is headed by an outstanding sire, Rainbow's Eminent Oxford, six years old, of which he himself is the breeder. This good bull is a double grandson of Oxford's Eminent Ruler, the noted Dr. Bryant bull bred at Bowmont Farm, Salem, Virginia. Mr. Massie also bred the dam of this bull. He reluctantly sold her about two years ago to Oklahoma 4-H club boys for $500 cash after cattle had dropped almost to their lowest point on the market. These club boys showed her and her group at the national Jersey show at St. Louis the same summer. They won first on the group in which she was shown and she herself was awarded first prize as an individual in her class in competition with cows of the same age of the entire country. She also won first in other regional registered Jersey cattle shows, including one later held at Dallas for the Southwest.

Will Hold Accountable Nation Blocking Progress.

Asks World Effort

Favors Adoption of British Plan In Move To Abolish Weapons

Berlin, May 17.—Chancellor Adolf Hitler this afternoon announced Germany's acceptance of President Roosevelt's disarmament proposals in a speech to the reichstag, marked by its conciliatory tone.

◆ ◆ ◆

Washington, May 17.—A forceful call for a realistic, world-wide effort to avoid war was flung dramatically into a threatening European situation Tuesday by President Roosevelt.

The rulers of fifty-four nations were told in straightforward terms that the state that blocks the path of progress will be held accountable by all civilization.

Briefly ,the chief executive urged adoption of the British arms plan abolishing weapons of offense, strict observance of treaty limitations on military power in the meantime and, finally, "a solemn and definite pact of nonaggression."

To bind the bargain of nonaggression, the president would have the nations individually agree that they will send no armed force of any nation across their frontiers.

At the White House it was said the United States is willing to alter some of its established practices to conform to the specifications laid down by the president.

Mr. Roosevelt believes that under the proposal banning the sending of armed forces beyond national borders the United States must cease its practice of sending marines into Latin-American countries to aid in keeping order.

◆ ◆ ◆

For Consultative Pact.

The president also sees no reason why consultation with other nations in event of a threat of aggressive war should not be undertaken under the Kellogg-Briand pact, to which most of the nations of the world have adhered.

Mrs. Will Jackson of this city has received a message from relatives announcing the very critical illness of her sister, Mrs. S. D. Wood, at Marshall, Texas.

EDITORIAL EXPRESSION

Real estate activity in both town and country seems to be increasing. More farms and more town homes have changed ownership in Collin County in the last thirty to forty days than for the past year or two.

Collin farmers are starting off with a good stand of both corn and cotton. These are very encouraging factors for farmers who always naturally desire good crops even if prices are low. And, they can't have good crops without good stands.

The Collin County Baptist Workers' conference at the Lucas Baptist church on May 1, as published several days ago in the Daily Courier-Gazette and Weekly Democrat-came square out against the liquor proposition to prevent the sale of beer and other intoxicating liquors in Texas and in the nation. We are not a Baptist, but we say "hurrah!" for the Baptists.

If you want a bird's eye view of conditions prevailing throughout Collin county just keep your eye on the country correspondence as carried in Daily Courier-Gazette and Weekly Democrat-Gazette in every issue. These papers have a corps of more than sixty efficient, faithful special correspondents located in as many community centers of this agricultural county of about 48,000 people and nearly 900 square miles of rich blackland area.

Friday, May 19, is to be a "Red Letter" day among Collin county farm women and girls, men and boys. On that date the annual extension short course will be observed at the College of Industrial Arts, at Denton. The McKinney Chamber of Commerce members will cooperate by helping to provide transportation for the women and girls of the Home Demonstration clubs of this county who may want to attend and do not have their own transportation. President Jas. H. Merritt, has a committee of his organization at work, securing a list of McKinney cars to help in this commendable service. The men will also go on that day, and visit the state experiment farm four miles west of Denton of which Paul B. Dunkle is director.

YOUR WEEKLY PAPER.

Of all the sheets from east to west,
The weekly paper is the best.
Deep is our love and deep our debt
To Banner, Journal, Times, Gazette.

When first I landed on this ball,
A bit o' flesh wrapped 'round a squall,
It welcomed me with joy and pride
My life has never justified.

It follows me my whole life thru,
With words all wind and mostly true;
And, even after I am hearsed,
'Twill tell my best and hide my worst.

COLLIN BAPTISTS TAKE A STAND.

We herewith hand to the Baptists of Collin county the hand of mutual friendship—for the recent splendid stand which they took on the liquor question through their County Baptist Workers' Conference. The Conference came out against liquor or beer—legal or illegal—and they didn't stutter either when they passed the following resolutions:

"Resolved, that we record our earnest conviction that Christian people and upright citizens everywhere by voice and vote and earnest endeavor should do all within their power to prevent the sale of beer and other intoxicating liquors in Texas and in the nation.

Resolved, that we are unalterably opposed to the liquor traffic in all forms and that we will use our utmost endeavor to prevent the sale of intoxicants anywhere and that we will cooperate with all proper agencies and any organizations working to this end.

BEER VS. MILK

All you livestock breeders and dairy men who have for years been listening to lectures from the agricultural experts and the bankers and leading business men of the cities who advised you that the way to success lay in breeding better dairy cattle and building up sales for your milk and butter in the cities, now have another think coming. It is up to you. You have borrowed money from the banks and spent years in building your trade, only to have it shattered to the point where no profit remains by the big liquor organizations backed by such men as Raskob, Sabin, and other huge income tax payers, who seek to tax beer and by that means make the beer guzzlers of the nation pay their income taxes. They dwell on the immense tax income to the nation. But they care not a dime for the loss to the farmers and dairy men of the nation who now behold their years of labor blotted out. Read this, and THINK:

A statement from Louisville, Kentucky, issued on the fourth day after beer sales commenced, reports that the business of the dairymen, the bakers, the soft drink makers and candy makers suffered heavy losses when beer sales came in. The dairymen were hardest hit. Milk dealers who have been supplying Louisville restaurants and lunch rooms reported that their losses the first day were practically one hundred per cent. The second day they were a little less. One of the largest dairies reported the decrease in the sale of milk at only forty per cent. Restaurant and cafe owners reported from forty to fifty per cent normal business. Candy makers had few orders. Soft drink fountains did little business. The demand for pies, cakes, doughnuts and other sweets was greatly lessened. One restaurant reported that its usual sale of three hundred pints of buttermilk were reduced to four; eight cases of soft drinks were reduced to six bottles; 120 pints of sweet milk reduced to one; demand for hot coffee was reduced by three-fourths.

It is evident that the sale of beer did not stimulate other business, but took away from it a very large part of what had been spent for food and soft drinks. It was not an INCREASE in business, but a DIVERSION of business FROM other lines to beer.

If the brewers have GIVEN work to some men they have TAKEN it away from others, if their business has increased, it has done so at the expense of other legitimate businesses. It is well to consider this side of the matter.—McKinney Examiner.

AN OLD-TIME-MODERN PREACHER.

The other day a dispatch from McKinney brought us information that Elder R. C. Horn had celebrated his eighty-ninth birthday at his home in McKinney. The dispatch read:

"Elder R. C. Horn, pioneer Collin county farmer, horticulturist, orchardist and minister of the Christian Church for sixty-five years, celebrated his eighty-ninth birthday aniversary Wednesday at his home in McKinney.

"He is a Confederate veteran who is still able to preach sermons, conduct funerals and perform marriage ceremonies. He is a university graduate and still a prolific writer for the press. He will preach his eighty-ninth birthday sermon at the First Christian church, this city, Sunday morning."

R. C. Horn is known to quite a number of people in Bonham. He has preached here a number of times in past years, as he preached in many places all over Texas. Few men have ever labored longer in the ministry, few have ever accomplished more in teaching and leading the people.

He was among the pioneer preachers of his religious group in Texas. He came here when preachers did not, depend on their salaries or the offerings of their flocks for a living. He made a living teaching school and farming while he did his early preaching. Indeed, we do not know that he has ever entirely given up his farm.

He is one of the outstanding examples among all the preachers we have ever known of being an old-timer who has kept abreast of the progress of the present without losing respect for the days of old and without abandoning the living truths and he taught his youth. He has ever been a student, and is one yet. That explains why he is an old-timer who is modern in his views of all good things.

Elder Horn has written much for the press, both religious and secular, and his contributions to the local papers in McKinney are valuable as records of early days that would have been lost had he not put them into print. They treated not only of his own experiences in years long dead, but they reflect an accurate picture of the society of that day. Collin county will do well to see that they are preserved in permaneat records.

His has been a long and active life, filled to the brim with labors for others, with self-sacrificial actions, with deeds of mercy, with expression of love. Many the hardships he endured, many the sorrows he has known, many the privations suffered, but ever his work of love and service went on. Collin county, all Texas, yea, the world has profited by his life and labors. Compensation has come to him in the approval of his own conscience, in the place he holds in the affections of those who know him, and seeing some of the effects of his own teachings and actions.

Now that his work is nearly ended may there he no lack of the expressions of the people whom he has served so long to make him realize that they appreciated his life.—Editor Ashley Evans in Bonham Favorite

She came up to attend the decoration at Wilson Chapel Sunday and will remain here for a few weeks. She was accompanied by another daughter, Mrs. M. We appreciate her patronage and friendly visit of Monday.

THE PEOPLES' CLEARING HOUSE

The Daily Courier-Gazette and Weekly Democrat-Gazette will print short timely commendations that are acceptable. They must be free from personal abuse and libel. Author; must sign their names. The views expressed here in are the writer's—not these editors. Space is limited. This column will be called: "The Peoples' Clearing House."

NON-DRINKERS HAVE SOME RIGHTS TOO

The letter in the Dallas News contributors' column recently from Ivan J. Campbell is amusing. He wrote: "I personally believe that any man who becomes annoying as a result of drinking (annoying, that is, to other citizens) should be taught a strict lesson in how to conduct himself while drinking." Mirabile dictu! Who ever heard of any one knowing how to conduct himself while drinking?

Mr. Campbell seems utterly ignorant of what liquor is. Had he attended school in pre-Volstead days when the schools obeyed the law requiring the teachers to teach the effects of alcohol on the human system, he would not have written that nonsense. It is of the very nature of liquor to destroy all self-control and to undermine all the results of teaching and of religion.

The alcohol in liquor is a narcotic and its first effect is to paralyze the very nerve centers that give us control of ourselves—the inhibitory nerves. To talk about self-control to a drinking person is like talking about reasoning to the insane, about hearing to the deaf ,or seeing to the blind.

He further asks that those who drink to enjoy themselves without annoying others, be allowed to do so. Who ever heard of one annoying himself? Again he seems ignorant of what liquor does. The curse of liquor falls on the innocent. A husband and father demands the right to drink—personal liberty. The curse of his drinking falls on his wife and children. They are supposed to have no rights in the matter except to suffer.

An auto driven by one who has drunk a couple of bottles of our new "nonintoxicating" beer crashes into my car and maims me for life, or worse. He has his personal liberty. But what about me?

I must not be too hard on Mr. Campbell. We have had prohibition for so long, and while the wets have done everything they could to prevent the people getting its benefits, it is true that drinking has dropped so low, resulting in such few instances of this glaring injustice to the non-drinkers, that many have forgotten the things that caused the revolt against the liquor traffic.

Miss Jacks on Program.

A feature of the afternoon was a talk by Miss Onah Jacks, who is landscaping specialist from the extension department. Her talk was on "Principals of Landscaping." She stated there are five particular things to be included in every arranged landscape. They are (1) unbroken and well sodded lawn; (2) shrubbery about the house, screening outhouses and making for privacy; (3) trees should provide a background; (4) walks and drives, emphasizing that walks would be much prettier if laid in a natural curve, rather than straight; (5) flowers should be arranged in the back and to the sides of the house. She used several pictures to illustrate some of the points in her talk.

HARDWARE IMPLEMENTS

SOME COLLIN COUNTY INDIAN MASSACRES AS TOLD BY J. M. MUSE

INTERESTING ADDRESS RECENTLY DELIVERED BEFORE McKINNEY ROTARY CLUB—SOME VICTIMS KNOWN AND NAMED—HARDSHIPS AND DANGERS ENDURED IN EARLY SETTLEMENT.

Editor's Note—The following address was made before the McKinney Rotary club by Hon. Jas. M. Muse. He was invited to discuss early Collin county history and chose to limit his remarks to recounting and describing, as best he could from material he had gathered, the Indian depredations and massacres inflicted upon early settlers of this county:

✦ ✦ ✦

WITNESS TREES.

By JAMES M. MUSE.

I wish to express my deep appreciation of the honor of being given the opportunity to address this body of men. Also to express my thanks for the nice things said by the gentlemen who introduced me. They sounded good, even though he stretched the blanket.

When your program committee assigned to me the subject: "The Early and Interesting History of Collin County," I felt that I would do well to talk five minutes, because I knew so little about it; but when I began to dip up facts here and yonder I very soon came to the conclusion that the subject was entirely too big to be covered in an after dinner talk.

So I have decided, if I may be permitted to do so, to speak to you instead on a subject that embraces only a portion of the subject assigned, and that subject will be "Witness Trees." The nature of the subject, as well as my own shortcomings, forbids me to attempt any literary embellishments or oratorical flights; so I can only hope that the few plain matter-o-fact statements which I purpose to make may be pleasing to you.

✦ ✦ ✦

Defining the Subject.

When the original surveyor starts out to lay off and segregate a tract of land from the unoccupied public domain, he establishes a corner, and then he marks trees to witness the location of that corner, and with his hatchet or tomahawk blazes trees down the lines. These are called witness trees, because they are supposed to stand steadfastly in the same place and point out just where and how far the surveyor went. However, I wish to use the term "Witness Trees," in a wider sense so as to include all those landmarks of civilization which stand steadfastly and show just where and how far mankind has gone in the march of progress at a given time, toward the taming of this wilderness and the building of this country.

Historical Perspective.

About 400 years ago the first white European set foot upon Texas soil; but after Coronado had journeyed across the land, it was about 200 years later before settlements to amount to anything were made in Texas. Those settlements started with the establishment of the Spanish missions in Southern Texas about 200 years ago, and it was a hundred years later, or in other words, about 100 years ago before this portion of Texas began to be settled to any extent. West and Northwest Texas remained unoccupied until comparatively recent times.

One of the principal obstacles to the settlement of Collin county and this part of Texas at an earlier date was the presence of a ferocious tribe of savage Indians, the Commanches, sometimes called th Southern Sioux. Many of them were over six feet tall and of very athletic build. When one of those varmints suddenly appeared in his warpaint and feathers he was a hideous vision, calculated to strike terror to the stoutest heart.

✦ ✦ ✦

He Calls for Help.

Now I have come to a point where I feel my incompetence and inability to properly deal further with the subject in hand. I have not been here long enough; and I want each one of you to help me in this way:

It would not be much trouble for you to imagine a hitching post at the curb outside, and a saddled horse being tied to that post. And then in a few moments the "clump, clump" of heavy brogan boots; and almost before we know it there appears in the doorway an old, old man, with long white hair, shaggy beard and keen bright eyes. On his left arm he carries a pair of old rusty, leather saddlebags, such as horseback riders used to carry behind their saddles. He approaches this table. He lays his saddlebags on it. Now let him tell you.

"Goodfellow" as Old Pioneer.

Gentlemen of the Rotary club, as I glance around at this scene, it comes to my mind that you have greatly improved in material things, creature comforts, and in the opportunities for intellectual advancement; but you have not gained over the old pioneers in courage, self-reliance, unselfish helpfulness and the love of liberty.

They braved unknown dangers, often single-handed and alone. This fertile soil has been watered by their blood and tears. Numbers of them have given their lives, as a sort of human sacrifice, to the Great Spirit of the Commanches, to win this land from savagery, and that's what I'm supposed to tell you about.

100 Years Ago.

Let us turn back the pages of time to a point about 100 years ago and see what we find, where Collin county now is.

A wide expanse of fertile rolling prairie covered with luxuriant native grasses and as thickly sown with beautiful wild flowers as the heavens are with stars on a June night; little streams cutting through, and bordered throughout all the lowlands with solemn, stately trees of the primeval forest. Not a plow had stirred the soil, and Wilson Creek, Honey Creek and East Fork were not turbid and muddy as they are now, but like "The little streams of Duna, running clear." It was a lovely land, fresh from the hand of God.

But like every Eden, it had its serpents. In the solitude of those deep umbrageous woods, sometimes the scream of a panther would be heard, or lying concealed on the limb of some great tree a mountain lion would glare at you, or a dim red shadow would flit behind the trunk of a tree just as a poisoned arrow would come whizzing in your direction singing like a rattlesnake.

A Little Later.

Let us turn a few pages until we come to a point between ninety and a hundred years ago.

In November, 1841, John Neely Bryan built his cabin on the banks of the Trinity, on the site of the present city of Dallas, and lived in it alone. It was the whole city at that time, and he was monarch of all he surveyed.

In the same month of the same year, Dr. Wm. E. Throckmorton, father of that distinguished son of Collin county, Hon. James Throckmorton, settled with his family on Throckmorton creek near Melissa, built his house and surrounded it with a stockade for defensive purpose.

Across the woods and prairie, some 30 or 40 miles to the northeast, a man named Inglish did the same thing. We called it Fort Inglish then, but it is the city of Bonham now.

✦ ✦ ✦

Clements and Whistler.

Let's turn another page.

In 1842, Wesley Clements, Samuel Young, and a man named Whistler, with their families, settled on Honey Creek, three or four miles north of here.

A few days before Christmas, Young was sent to Fort Inglish for provisions and perhaps also a little Christmas for the children. On Christmas day Young had not returned, and Clements and Whistler were both in the bottom near their cabins, felling trees. They were attacked by Indians and Whistler killed on the spot. Clements made a run for the house, with the savages pursuing him. Mrs. Clements with a gun in her hand ran to meet her husband, but she was too late. He was tomahawked and scalped within fifty yards of the house, and Mrs. Clements barely had time to get back to the house, bar the door and present the gun, and with the aid of Mrs. Young the Indians were driven off.

Mrs. Whistler, who was at a branch near the creek, heard the firing, then the screams at the house, and next the Indians pursuing the hobbled horse of her husband which had on a bell. The bell was coming directly towards her. She sprang into the water under some driftwood near the bank, keeping only her nose above water. The horse was caught immediately above her. After everything became still, believing that all of them at the house were killed, she hurried down the creek through brambles and briars which tore her clothing to strips. She found the road toward the Inglish settlement, but when she came to East Fork it was too deep to cross. She finally found a shallow place, crossed it and followed the trail on toward Fort Inglish. Two men in a wagon met her, but she was hysterical and ran from them. They thought she was crazy. She finally reached the Inglish settlement, and the good people there tenderly cared for her.

Driving on, the two men in the wagon when they got to East Fork, saw Mrs. Clement and Mrs Young with their children on the other side of the creek, unable to cross. The two men felled a tree and crossed them over, and furnished them all the relief in their power.

Clements and Whistler were buried at the Throckmorton place. Honey Creek still runs in its channel, bordered by a fringe of trees, some of them probably dating back to the time of this tragedy.

✦ ✦ ✦

Doctor Calder.

We turn another page.

In Feb. 1843, Col. Jack McGarrah, assisted by Wilcox, Helm, Harlan, Blankenship and Rice, was engaged in building the first house in what was afterwards known as Old Buckner, which afterwards became the first county site of Collin county.

This place was about three miles west of McKinney on Wilson creek, which must have been somewhere near what was called in later years the old Chandler Hole, a deep woodsy solitude where the boys used to go swimming.

About sunrise one morning, Dr. Calder, who had settled near Cedar Springs in Dallas county, rode up on horseback, leading another horse, on his way to Inglish's. He stopped and chatted awhile. Soon after he left, McGarrah and the other men saw him rushing back to the house on foot, pursued by two Indians. The men at the house hastened to his relief, but he was slain and scalped, in a cluster of trees, before they could get there; and the relief party found themselves confronted by about 60 Indians just risen from the tall grass very near them. The men retreated to the unfinished house and stood on the defensive, using the cracks as portholes. The numerous dogs on the outside attacked the Indians, and they were finally driven off.

Dr. Calder was buried on the Throckmorton place beside Clements and Whistler.

The Muncy Family and Jamison.

One more page brings us to 1844, the year the Muncy family and Jamison were murdered by Indians on Rowlett creek near Plano. This story has been told over and over, so I shall touch it briefly.

The Muncy family consisting of the father, mother, three sons aged respectively 17, 15 and 12, and an infant 3 years of age, with an elderly man named Jamison were building their humble home in the woods near Rowlett creek, when they were set upon by Indians and all of them murdered except the 15-year-old boy who happened to be gone at that time to the Throckmorton settlement.

Leonard Searcy and William Rice with their two young sons were out on a camp hunt in that vicinity. Searcy went in search of the Muncy settlement and came upon the bodies of Muncy and Jamison, also the body of Mrs. Muncy horribly mutilated and that of the three-year-old infant with its skull crushed, all recently murdered and lying under a large oak tree near their unfinished home. The sturdy old tree that witnessed that tragedy of ninety years ago is still standing steadfastly in the same place, and here is a picture of it that a friend gave to me. Near it, a little baby shoe was picked up many years afterward. The leather was weatherbeaten and old. It had curled up and was almost as hard as flint.

Horrified, Searcy rushed back to the camp and told Rice. Their two sons had gone hunting on horseback, and the two old men, alarmed, started out to look for them. They soon came upon the body of young Rice, who had been killed by the same band of Indians, young Searcy having escaped and gone to the Throckmorton settlement for aid. Later it was found that the two Muncy boys, 17 and 12 years of age, had been carried off by the Indians and also murdered.

When you are driving in your auto to Dallas on your beautiful paved highway, just after you cross Rowlett creek, if you will stop and look over to the west, [illegible] the creek on a farm which belongs to a man named Hagy. At the foot of those trees the victims are buried . . . witness trees, still standing.

This was the last serious raid that took place in Collin county, but in that same year Indians visited the home of Thomas J. McDonald, out on what is now the Weston road about three miles from McKinney. The family was absent from home at the time, so the savages contented themselves with destroying just about everything there was on the place.

Now I have made my part of this speech, and it is time for me to take my leave of you.

✦ ✦ ✦

Mr. Muse Resumes in Propria Personæ.

I wish to thank you gentlemen for the close attention and patient hearing you have given to the remarks of the good old fellow, who so kindly assisted.

There are just a few words which I would like to say about Thomas J. McDonald, before I sit down. When my father built his home in the early 1870's, where his family was reared, he did so on a portion of the Thos. J. McDonald headright survey, which he bought from Mr. McDonald. The old McDonald house was only a short distance from our home, and I remember it very well—a one-story house with a dark weatherbeaten roof. I presume it was covered with clap-boards. The house is not there now; but the nice modern home of J. M. Pitts occupies the same site.

A few days ago I saw Mrs. Geo. H. Herndon (formerly Miss Lucy McDonald, a daughter of T. J. McDonald) sitting in a car here in town, waiting for J. F. Montgomery and family to come and drive home. I have known her all my life and we always called her "Miss Lucy."

I walked up to the car and said:

"Miss Lucy, can you tell me anything about the raid the Indians made on your father's house."

"I can only tell you what has been told to me. My father was married twice. He and his first wife had been several miles across the country to sit until bedtime with a neighbor ,and were returning in a wagon in the moonlight. Just before they reached home, they noticed a lot of little white things on the ground and bushes, and when they came in sight of the house, such a scene of destruction met their gaze, that McDonald said:

"Hannah, the Injuns have been here."

"Thank the Lord the house is still standing," said Mrs. McDonald. The place was literally wrecked. They had even ripped open the feather beds and shook them out, so that feathers were scattered all over the prairie."

"I remember the old house Miss Lucy."

"Yes," said she, "I am sure you do; but do you remember a big old pecan tree that sat out northwest of the house? Somebody has cut it. I wish they had not."

In conclusion: May we leave behind our witness trees for the guidance of those who come after us, as plainly marked as those of the old pioneers. May the foundation which we lay for our children to build upon be as sturdy and as true as the one the old pioneers laid for us. May the sons of Collin county be rich in courage, self-reliance, unselfish helpfulness, and the love of liberty. May the daughters of Collin county be beautiful, loving and helpful. May this land always remain a land of God, even as it was when it fell freshly green from His hand.

Registration Fees Jersey Cattle Lower

Taking a definite step to help the thousands of owners of purebred Jersey cattle in the United States to keep pedigree and transfer records of their cattle up to date, the American Jersey Cattle club has reduced registration rates for purebred animals over 2 years of age from $10 to $5 and the fee for recording all transfers of purebred animals to $2 for the period from April 15, to December 1, 1933, inclusive.

In announcing this temporary reduction in fees, Lewis W. Morley, executive secretary of the American Jersey Cattle club, which is the national organization of Jersey breeders, said that a new section amending the by-laws of the club has also been adopted permanently reducing registration rates for purebred Jersey cattle owned by boys and girls who are members of 4-H Calf clubs and Vocational clubs.

"Boys and girls who are taking such an interest in better dairying and farming should be encouraged in their work," Mr. Morley said, "and the recently adopted reduction in registration fees for Jerseys which they own makes it possible for these young agriculturists to save from $1.00 to $2.00 on registrations of animals under 2 years of age."

SEVERE STORM DAMAGE TO FARM JIM HARRIS

Sunday night's hail and windstorm did much damage to the Wood Harris farm, five miles southwest of McKinney. The tenant on the farm is Jim Harris who, with his wife and five children, took refuge in their storm cellar, so we were informed.

His house was badly damaged by the wind and hail as were also his barns and outhouses. A vacant negro house on the place was completely wrecked. Its occupants had just moved out three or four days before the storm.

Mr. Harris' crops look to be practically destroyed by the violent beating of the deluge of hailstones, some of them big as marbles.

VIRGIL H. GROGAN AND FAMILY SOUGHT SAFETY

Virgil H. Grogan and fine little 8-year-old son, V. H. Jr., who live on one of Mrs. T. B. Wilson's farms, five miles southwest of McKinney, were in town Monday morning and were callers at our office.

Mr. Grogan reported a severe wind and hailstorm that visited his farm about 9 o'clock Sunday night doing much damage to buildings and crops.

The two-story seven-room house in which he lives, was partly unroofed, the porches blown down, two brick flues blown off, his barn and outhouses in the way of sheds and chicken houses were more or less badly wrecked and his cotton so badly damaged that he thinks he will have to plant it over. He had just finished plowing his cotton and was expecting to chop it to a stand this week. WHEAT SCORED BIG ADVANCE THURSDAY ON ADVERSE CROP NEWS

Excited by official announcement of the largest destruction of United States winter wheat ever known, bread grains scored a maximum advance of 5½c Thursday at Chicago.

Even the enactment of the Roosevelt combined inflation and agriculture bill took second place as a market influence, eclipsed by complete surprise over the abnormal crop outlook for 1933.

Furious speculative buying in which there was scarcely any let up with the general public in the market to an extent not often equaled, sent prices skyrocketing to heights unreached heretofore this season for wheat, rye and oats, with lard also outdoing the record. Rye made the steepest extreme gain, 5½c, wheat 3 3-8c and corn 2 5-8c.

Latest quotations on all staples were not far from the day's top. Wheat closed buoyant, 2 5-8-2 7-8c above yesterday's finish, rye 3 7-8-4 3-4c advanced, corn 1 3-8-2 1-8c up, oats at 7-8-1 1-8c gain, and provisions showing a rise of 5c to 30c.

Despite huge selling to realize profits, in the late transactions, the wheat pit especially continued to be ablaze with buying enthusiasm. New waves of purchase orders came with redoubled force on price setbacks. The government crop report was generally construed by traders as indicating the nearest to a failure that wheat in this country has ever met with at this part of the season. Leading unofficial authorities said the report showed United States winter wheat throughout an enormous area was dead, not merely injured.

Widespread notice was taken of a statement from one of the largest grain companies in Chicago that wheat acreage in the United States has been reduced to a point at which any artificial curtailment either of wheat or any other bread grain might easily be flirting with famine. The fact was stressed that the government crop report indicated the smallest harvest of domestic winter wheat in twenty-nine years. Attention was also drawn to reports showing a none too rosy outlook for sprink wheat.

Corn distinguished itself by soaring to above 50c a bushel. December delivery of corn went to 50 3-8c. A special reason was heavy rains over practically all of the corn belt east of the Missouri river, rendering plowing or planting almost impossible. Oats followed corn and wheat upgrade.

PLANS AVAILABLE INEXPENSIVE CORN CRIBS

For the convienence of the farmer, working plans and bills of materials for a simple and inexpensive corncrib and for a combination crib and granary have been developed by the Bureau of Agricultural Engineering, U. S. Department of Agriculture. Either is available upon application of the bureau.

The cribs are of frame construction and are rat proof. They have middle driveways, removable ventilators and drying racks, and drag doors. The devices for ventilating and for rat proofing may also be used in remodeling old structures. The details of construction can be applied in building cribs of greater or smaller dimensions or of different types.

The corncrib is in two sections separated by a driveway. Each section has a floor dimension 8 x 32 feet, and a capacity of 1,000 bushels of ear corn. One of the sections may be built and the other added later.

Each corn storage section of the combination crib and granary has a floor dimension of 8 x 36 feet, and a capacity of 1,960 bushels of ear corn. In the space over the driveway, afforded by the height of building and pitch of roof which makes possible the use of a stationary or a portable elevator for filling bins and for shifting grain, are bins for small grains of 3,000 bushels capacity. The floor of each corn storage section has a shelling trench where one man with a long-handled rake can roll the corn from the top of the crib into the drag as fast as the ordinary sheller can handle the grain. Corn can be suspended for as long as is required in the drying racks before being dumped into the crib proper. This type of crib is especially useful where harvested corn contains considerable moisture.

Miss Eula Hunter and sister, Mrs. Hunter McMillan, of Fort Worth, recently visited at the home of their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Henry E. Morgan, in McKinney, and attended the annual decoration of graves at the Fitzhugh cemetery, at Forest Grove. Mrs. McMillan and Mr. Morgan also visited the Old Highland cemetery to decorate the graves of the late Dr. J. E. Hunter and wife, Mrs. McMillan being a sister of Dr. Hunter. Mrs. McMillan's sister-in-law, Miss Mary Taylor, of Murphy, also came to McKinney with them and was a guest of a dinner in honor of the party at the Morgan home.

Otis Melton, farmer living in the Wilmeth community, three miles north of McKinney, states that the hailstorm Sunday night did much damage to his cotton, onions, garlic, corn and garden. In fact, he thinks he will have to plant his cotton over again. He has two acres in onions and also two acres in garlic. When the storm struck about 9 o'clock Sunday night, Mr. and Mrs. Melton and their two children were in their car returning home from South Wilcox Street Methodist church services. They ran in to the garage of Mrs. Dr. Todd Largent on West Louisiana street for protection against the pounding of the hailstones.

J. E. Cooper, McKinney contractor, was a caller at our office, coming by to show us some spring Irish potatoes from the garden at their home on North ennessee street. He dug a half bushel of these new potatoes from his garden Wednesday morning and his wife canned them. In this way, they have new potatoes the year around. In fact, Mr. Cooper says that they had spring potatoes on their table last Christmas Day. He says the crop looks good this year, and if the two specimens he brought by our office are an average he has a wonderful crop of these garden edibles.

Dr and Mrs. J. H. Cozad left Sunday night, following church services at the First Baptist church, for Washington, D. C., where they will attend the Southern Baptist church convention which convenes in the national capital next week. They are driving through in their car. The Northern Baptist convention will also meet in Washington at the same time. Although they have never before met together, these two Baptist church branches will come together one day for a joint session. The trip of Dr. and Mrs. Cozad is being sponsored by the Young Married Couples' B. Y. P. U. of the First Baptist church, of which he is sponsor, this organization having raised the funds to send Dr. and Mrs. Cozad to the annual meeting.

ABOUT OUR FREE FAIR.

Had you stopped to think that now is the time to prepare for the annual Collin County Free fair to be held in McKinney this fall? Regardless what department you enter, make ready that display now. Collin farmers will watch with care crops they plant this spring, taking great care of those products they intend to show here this fall. With a splendid season in the ground, and fair weather promised, Collin county's rich black land soil should make an abundant agricultural yield, and you'll see proof of this statement when you attend the county-wide exposition later this year. Whether or not you have ever exhibited at the fair, plan to do so this year and carry off your share of the prizes. It can be done.

C. I. A. SHORT COURSE.

One of the important days for Collin county farm club men and women will be Friday of this week, May 19, when this county will send a large delegation to C. I. A., Denton, to attend the annual short course, for both men and women. In addition to an inspection trip of that Denton college in the forenoon, the ladies will hear an interesting and instructive program that afternoon, while the men will attend the Denton experiment farm station. At noon, lunch will be spread on the C. I. A. campus.

M. H. S. TEACHERS.

After looking over that list of fine teachers, re-elected by the school board, as announced in Thursday's Daily Courier-Gazette, all of us must feel that we're fortunate to boast such a group of experienced and capable teachers. Under the leadership of Supt. Jack R. Ryan, our schools continue to forge to the front, occupying seventh place in points of satisfaction with all other high schools over the state. One of the important reasons why we command such an enviable position is because of the capable teaching staff, which can not be excelled. Our graduates always make an excellent showing in higher institutions of learning, after their graduation from our high school. They have received a firm foundation in their high school work here and the fact that they graduate from McKinney High is proof that they are capable to enter any college or university anywhere and be able to keep up the high standard of work they have been accustomed to doing in our local public school system.

ROY LARGENT AND WIFE VISIT IN OKLAHOMA CITY

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Largent went up to Oklahoma City Wednesday morning to see the series of baseball games between the Oklahoma City Indians and the Galveston Buccaneers, members of the Texas league.

They are going up there especially to look over Charley English, hard-hitting and fast-fielding second baseman for the Buccaneers. English is one of Mr. Largent's proteges, the Chisox Scout having picked him up from the Hutchinson team in the Western association. He is the property of the Chicago White Sox but has been farmed out to Galveston this year for seasoning.

He is given as one reason why the Buccaneers are playing such good baseball this season, having been on top most of the time in recent weeks. While in Oklahoma City, Mr. and Mrs. Largent will also take advantage of the occasion by looking over Otho (Fatty) Nitcholas, former McKinney High product, who is making good with the Indians this season. In conversation with this editor Tuesday, Scout Largent declared that Billy Webb, Galveston manager, said that Nitcholas is one of the best prospects he has seen in the Texas league this year. Mr. and Mrs. Largent will return home this week-end.

RED CROSS HAS DISTRIBUTED MUCH ASSISTANCE

Distribution of government cotton by the American Red Cross has taken the form of 75,000,000 yards of cloth, 58,000,000 garments, 5,000,000 sweaters and 2,000,000 each of blankets and comforts according to a recent resume by James L. Fieser, vice chairman. This operation has already involved 175,429 shipping orders, with attendant audit. The 844,000 bales of farm board cotton included practically every length and quality of staple.

"The value of this cotton," points out Mr. Fieser, "ranges from $65,000,000 to $75,000,000, depending upon the market. By way of comparison, the Mississippi flood operation of the Red Cross ran a little over $17,000,000.

"In addition to its cotton work, the Red Cross has been one of the biggest flour producers and distributors in the world. The total quantity of government wheat set aside for Red Cross distribution amounts to 85,000,000 bushels. This huge dispersal will be completed by June."

FORMER M'KINNEY GIRL GRADUATES AT BROWNWOOD

Friends in McKinney have received an invitation from Miss Peggy Jane Woodruff to attend the commencement exercises of the Brownwood High school Friday evening, May 26, 1933, at 8 o'clock in the Howard Payne College auditorium.

Peggy Jane began her school career at McKinney, where her father, M. H. Woodruff, was prominent in business circles and also active in the Chamber of Commerce during the several years that he was located here before moving to Brownwood. Her mother was active in church and club circles of our city.

The host of friends of the Woodruff family regretted very much to lose them from our citizenship. Jane was a general favorite among her little friends here and older ones too. It is gratifying to all of these friends to know that she is likewise appreciate dat Brownwood where recently she was voted the best all-around girl in a popularity contest in the Brownwood High school and was in the finals as the school's most popular girl. She is head yell leader this year and associate editor of the "Central Texans," their school oratory paper and was the senior representative to the student council recently. She has been twice at the state meet in debate and is president of the senior orotory class this year. She is also a member of the Brownwood High School Glee club, which won second place at the state contest held at Denton last year. She represented District No. 13 in the extemporaneous speech division in the finals at the twenty-third annual state meet of the University Interscholastic league recently held at Austin.

This editor counts it one of the most pleasant memories of our life to have known Jane and to notice through the columns of the Brownwood paper the news of the fine way she is developing into beautiful and cultured young womanhood in her adopted home there. These editors join the multitude of other Woodruff friends in McKinney in congratulating her on her graduation at so young an age and in such a distinguished way.

POTATO BUG REMEDY GIVEN BY M'CULLOUGH

County Farm Agent Jack P. McCullough says that many requests are coming to him every day now for remedies for potato bugs. He gives the following simple mixture:

One pound arsenate to twelve pounds of hydrated (unslacked) lime. Put this mixture in a grass sack and shake it over the plants.

The worst enemy of the Irish potato is the Colorado potato beetle. This yellow beetle, with ten black stripes upon the back, is too common to necessitate description. It lays a large number of yellow eggs on the under side of the potato leaf, which hatch in about five days into very small young, rapidly growing to the soft - skinned, orange colored "worms" that devour the leaves.

J. B. (JIM) BELL REMAINS BURIED WALNUT GROVE

A host of friends and relatives gathered Wednesday, May 3, 1933 to pay their last respects to the memory of J. B. (Jim) Bell, aged 83 years, who passed away Monday, May 1, shortly after 7 a. m. following a short illness at the home of his youngest son, H. E. Bell, and wife, seven miles southeast of Hale Center, Texas. Mr. Bell had been in fairly good health up until Tuesday before his death at the time stated.

Following a brief service at the home, the body was shipped to Dallas accompanied by Fayette Flake a neighbor and a former resident of Prosper community. Tom Byrum of Frisco met the body there bringing it to the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Maxey a daughter, where it rested for a few hours before being taken to the Prosper Presbyterian church of which the deceased was a charter member, where the funeral services were conducted by his former pastor, Rev. R. B. Evans.

Pallbearers were his grandsons, Lawrence, Frankie, Carl, Oral and Galen Bell of Prosper and J. E. Bell of Hale Center.

Born in Georgia.

James Barnes Bell, son of William and Elizabeth (Barnes) Bell was born April 19, 1850, in Georgia, being 83 years and 14 days old when he passed away. He moved to Texas when about twelve years of age. His father dying shortly afterward. The Bell family first settled on what is now known as the M. C. Higginbotham place east of Prosper. Except for a short while spent in Wood county, Mr. Bell had lived all of his life around Prosper until four years ago when he moved to West Texas, where he made his home wich Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bell, near Hale Center. He was converted at old Bethel at the age of 17 years, uniting with the Presbyterian church of which he was a faithful member as long as he was able to attend, still interested when feebleness became his portion and he was forced to stay away. He was a charter member of what is now the Prosper Presbyterian church which was organized at the Pleasant Valley schoolhouse in 1878, being elected elder March 29, 1896. Mr. Bell gave the land for the first church which was built where Mrs. W. B. Bell's house now stands. The church being moved to old Rock Hill and then to Prosper where it is now located. He loved his Master and His cause—always willing to do whatever he could in anyway for the upbuilding of the church and community.

His Marriage.

He was married to Mary Jane (Mollie) Renison on Nov. 17, 1870, she preceding him to the grave Dec. 27, 1928. To this union were born six children, one dying in infancy, K. P. Bell died March 28, 1900, W. B. Bell died Dec. 6, 1921. Three children surviving: J. Less Bell and Henry E. Bell of Hale Center, and Mrs. J. E. (Bettie) Maxey of Prosper. Two sisters also survive. Mrs. Sallie Warwick and Mrs. A. C. Spencer. Eleven grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren, also mourn his passing. Mrs. W. B. Bell of Prosper and Mrs. K. P. Bell of California with a host of other relatives and friends.

"Pap" or "Uncle Jim" as he was more familiarly known has gone on to his reward, leaving in his wake a heritage not to be bought with jewels or money, that of a Christian father and a neighbor and friend, one who can truly be called a good man, who lived his life each day, the same, numbering his many friends by his acquaintances.

The children and relatives of this our friend and brother have the heartfelt sympathy of their friends in this hour of bereavement and especially the son and wife with whom he resided who have so tenderly cared for him in his old age. No task was too hard for the sweet daughter-in-law, who has served "Pap" so well, truly her crown will shine with many stars for the tender care she had given this aged man who had come to depend on her as a little child.

A long procession followed the body to the Walnut Grove cemetery, where it was laid to rest by the side of loved ones who had preceded him to the Great Beyond.

Kindle had their children at home Sunday as follows: Floyd Kindle and wife of Waco; Walter (Pup) Kindle of San Benito; Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Kindle and Mr. and Mrs. Reid Kindle and little daughter, Patricia Sue, all of McKinney, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Crice and daughter, Dolores Ann, of Dallas.

Twin daughters were born Monday night to Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Craft at the city hospital, the infant daughters each weighing more than five pounds. The mother and young daughters are getting along nicely. Mrs. Craft was before her marriage, Miss Myrtle Nelson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Nelson of this city.

The store building on East Louisiana street, formerly occupied by the Collin County Seed store, is being nicely repainted and recalciumined for the opening of Bozeman's Cash and Carry Grocery and Market, about the 25th of this month. McKinney gains a good citizen and business man in the coming to our town of Mr. Bozeman and wife. He is a native of Collin county, but for the past several years has resided in Dallas, being engaged in the grocery business.
